

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

NISU represented in The British Indian Awards

We are extremely delighted to announce that the president of NISU UK, Sanam Arora, made it to the finals of the Spirit of Britain category for the British Indian Awards.

This prestigious award celebrates the accomplishments of talented individuals with an Indian heritage living in Britain. It celebrates the determination, hard-work and commitment of those who have excelled in their fields. This will be the second annual British Indian Awards and we are thrilled that NISU is already being represented.

The National Indian Students' Union (NISU) is an umbrella organisation representing UK university students and alumni of Indian heritage. NISU was created to provide a unifying voice for students with Indian heritage (whether home-grown or international) and promote, educate and celebrate Indian culture with people of all communities. We aim to bring all Indian student societies and alumni in the UK to one platform. We work with a number of organisations including official agencies to achieve this. The definitive reason for our existence is to represent Indian students. We are 'By students and for students'.

Addressing a far-reaching range of issues, NISU has helped many students and raised considerable awareness about important issues since its conception. Having only been established in 2011, NISU has managed to have a considerable impact. At the forefront of this is NISU's President, Sanam, whose hard work has been recognised by the esteemed British Indian Awards. Previously Sanam was bestowed by the London School of Economics with its highest honour for students, the Honorary Studentship, recognising her services to the university.
